

About the School

This college is situated close to a coastal village on the south west coast of Wales, with easy access to the beautiful Welsh countryside and views over the Gower Peninsula. It has a student population of 10,000 from the UK and overseas spread over 5 campuses, offering a vast array of part-time and full-time academic and vocational courses.

The progressive teaching and learning environment enable students to reach their full potential whilst studying during their exchange programme. With many international students from different countries choosing this college to study at, this college prides itself on its record of achievement within the international sector.

With specialised facilities such as a computer-aided engineering centre and sports analysis suite, this college not only offers the great British experience but also the opportunity to make friends for life in an environment that is second to none.

Location Information

Carmarthenshire is a beautiful historic county in southwest Wales, known as the "Garden of Wales" and is also home to the National Botanic Garden of Wales. Agriculture, forestry, fishing and tourism are the main industries in the county and as a tourist destination it offers a wide range of outdoor activities. Much of the coast is fairly flat; it includes a coastal park, which extends for ten miles along the coast; the National Wetlands Centre; a championship golf course; and the quaint coastal harbours. There are sandy beaches and a number of medieval castles, hillforts and the standing stones. The Dylan Thomas Boathouse is nearby. Many sporting activities are available, such as: rambling, cycling, fishing, kayaking, canoeing, sailing, horse riding, caving, abseiling and coasteering
